“Moreover, when wrestlers pit their strength against each other, they begin in a lighthearted, open frame of mind but they usually end up looking angry. At the height of the contest, many crafty tricks are played. When people drink during ceremonies, they start off in an orderly manner and usually finish in disarray. At the height of the party, fun becomes chaos. So it is with all things. They begin in good faith and end up in meanness. What was simple in the beginning becomes grotesque in the end. Words are like the wind and the waves; action involves the risk of gain or loss. The wind and the waves are easily set in motion; risk can easily turn into real danger. Hence, anger comes from nothing more than clever words and half truths. When animals face death, they do not care what noises they make. They growl fiercely and snarl, and then they attack. In the same way, if a person is pushed too far, that person turns and strikes without knowing why. If one does not know why, who knows where it will lead? Therefore, it is said, ‘Neither deviate from your instructions, nor hurry to finish.’ Do not force things. It is dangerous to deviate from instructions or push for completion. It takes a long time to do a thing properly. Once you do something wrong, it may be too late to change it. Can you afford to be careless?

“So then, flow with whatever may happen and let your mind be free; stay centered by accepting whatever you are doing. This is the ultimate. How else can you carry out your task? It is best to leave everything to work naturally, though this is not easy.”

—Chuang Tsu, Chapter 4

All things arise from Tao.
They are nourished by Virtue.
They are formed from matter.
They are shaped by environment.
Thus the ten thousand things respect Tao and honor Virtue.
Respect of Tao and honor of Virtue are not demanded,
But they are in the nature of things.

Therefore all things arise from Tao.
By Virtue they are nourished,
Developed, cared for,
Sheltered, comforted,
Grown, and protected.
Creating without claiming,
Doing without taking credit,
Guiding without interfering.
This is Primal Virtue.

— Tao Te Ching, Chapter Fifty-One

Being divine, you will be at one with the Tao.

Being at one with the Tao is eternal.

And though the body dies, the Tao will never pass away.

Empty yourself of everything.
Let the mind become still.
The ten thousand things rise and fall while the Self watches their return.
They grow and flourish and then return to the source.
Returning to the source is stillness, which is the way of nature.
The way of nature is unchanging.
Knowing constancy is insight.
Not knowing constancy leads to disaster.
Knowing constancy, the mind is open.
With an open mind, you will be openhearted.
Being openhearted, you will act royally.
Being royal, you will attain the divine.
Being divine, you will be at one with the Tao.
Being at one with the Tao is eternal.
And though the body dies, the Tao will never pass away.

Great knowledge is all-encompassing; small knowledge is limited. Great words are inspiring; small words are chatter. When we are asleep, we are in touch with our souls. When we are awake, our senses open.

We get involved with our activities, and our minds are distracted. Sometimes we are hesitant, sometimes underhanded, and sometimes secretive. Little fears cause anxiety, and great fears cause panic. Our words fly off like arrows, as though we knew what was right and wrong. We cling to our own point of view, as though everything depended on it. And yet our opinions have no permanence; like autumn and winter, they gradually pass away. We are caught in the current and cannot return. We are tied up in knots like an old clogged drain; we are getting closer to death with no way to regain our youth. Joy and anger, sorrow and happiness, hope and fear, indecision and strength, humility and willfulness, enthusiasm and insolence, like music sounding from an empty reed or mushrooms rising from the warm, dark earth, continually appear before us day and night. No one knows whence they come. Don't worry about it! Let them be! How can we understand it all in one day?

When Lao Tsu died, Chin Shih went to the funeral. He yelled three times and left.
A disciple said, “Were you not a friend of the Master?”
“Yes.”
“Then is it proper to mourn him in this way?”
“Yes. When I first arrived, I thought his spirit was really there. Now I know it wasn’t. When I went in to mourn, the old people were wailing as though they had lost their son. The young ones were crying as though they had lost their mother. Since they were all together, they talked and wept without any control. This is avoiding heaven, indulging in sentiment, ignoring what is natural. In the old days, it was called the crime of violating the law of nature.
“The Master came because it was time. He left because he followed the natural flow. Be content with the moment, and be willing to follow the flow; then there will be no room for grief or joy. In the old days this was called freedom from bondage. The wood is consumed but the fire burns on, and we do not know when it will come to an end.”

Everyone under heaven says that my Tao is great and beyond compare.
Because it is great, it seems different.
If it were not different, it would have vanished long ago.

I have three treasures which I hold and keep.
The first is mercy; the second is economy;
The third is daring not to be ahead of others.
From mercy comes courage; from economy comes generosity;
From humility comes leadership.

Nowadays people shun mercy but try to be brave;
They abandon economy but try to be generous;
They do not believe in humility but always try to be first.
This is certain death.

Mercy brings victory in battle and strength in defense.
It is the means by which heaven saves and guards.

Duke Ai asked, “What do you mean by achieving full harmony?”

Confucius said, “Life and death, profit and loss, failure and success, poverty and wealth, value and worthlessness, praise and blame, hunger and thirst, cold and heat—these are natural changes in the order of things. They alternate with each other like day and night. No one knows where one ends and the other begins. Therefore, they should not disturb our peace or enter into our souls. Live so that you are at ease, in harmony with the world, and full of joy. Day and night, share the springtime with all things, thus creating the seasons in your own heart. This is called achieving full harmony.”

“And what is this lack of outward manifestation of virtue?”

Confucius said, “Balance is the perfect state of still water. Let that be our model. It remains quiet within and is not disturbed on the surface. Virtue is the attainment of perfect harmony. Because virtue has no outward form, nothing can escape from it.”

Later, Duke Ai told this to Ming Tsu, saying, “When I first faced south and took the reins of government, guiding the people and caring for their lives, I thought that I was doing my utmost as a ruler. Now that I have heard the words of a perfect man, I am afraid that there is no substance to what I am doing. I have foolishly squandered my energy and am ruining my country. Confucius and I are no longer related as subject and ruler but as spiritual companions.”

When the Tao is present in the universe,
The horses haul manure.
When the Tao is absent from the universe,

A brave and passionate person will kill or be killed.
A brave and calm person will always preserve life.
Of these two which is good and which is harmful?
Some things are not favored by heaven. Who knows why?
Even the wise are unsure of this.

The Tao of heaven does not strive and yet it overcomes.
It does not speak and yet is answered.
It does not ask, yet all its needs are met.
It seems to have no aim and yet its purpose is fulfilled.

Heaven's net is cast wide.
Though its meshes are coarse, nothing slips through.

— Tao Te Ching, Chapter Seventy-Three

This 37th edition of the Tao Calendar features selections from the translation of the Chinese classic Tao Te Ching (1972) by Gia-fu Feng and Jane English, along with selections from their edition of Chuang Tsu: Inner Chapters (1974). Both books feature Gia-fu's Chinese calligraphy and Jane's black-and-white photographs of nature.

Gia-fu Feng, born in Suzhou in 1919 and educated in China, came to the United States in 1947 to study international banking. He held a BA from Peking University and an MA from Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. He taught at the Esalen Institute in Big Sur, California, and directed the Stillpoint Foundation, a Taoist community located in the Santa Cruz mountains of California, then in Colorado. Gia-fu died in 1985.

Jane English was born in Boston, Massachusetts in 1942 and grew up on an old farm near a New England village. She attended Mount Holyoke College and received her doctorate in physics from the University of Wisconsin in 1970. Her other books include Different Doorway: Adventures of a Caesarean Born (1985), Mount Shasta: Where Heaven and Earth Meet (1995), Fingers Pointing to the Moon (1999), a rainbow of Tao (2018), and White Pines (2025).

Still Point of the Turning World: The Life of Gia-fu Feng

by Carol Ann Wilson

New edition featuring additional vintage photographs, many in color.

Born in 1919 to a wealthy family in Shanghai, Gia-fu Feng fled mainland China in 1947 during the Chinese Civil War, beginning a journey that ultimately led him to America and the counter-cultural revolution of the 1960s. This well-researched biography tracks a life that began with external privilege but culminated in the gradual discovery of the still point within.

TAO

PHOTOGRAPHY BY JANE ENGLISH
CALLIGRAPHY BY GIA-FU FENG

sample upper page text:

*And yet our opinions have no permanence;
like autumn and winter, they gradually pass away.*

The Tao Te Ching, the esoteric but infinitely practical book written in the sixth century BCE by Lao Tsu, has been translated more times than any work except the Bible. For centuries, artists, poets, painters, and even gardeners have used the Tao Te Ching as a source of inspiration and guidance. The Tao wall calendar features contemplative nature photographs, gracefully stylized Chinese calligraphy, and translations of the Tao Te Ching and Chuang Tsu's Inner Chapters.
